

Werner Volz

Head of Finance and Controlling – Powertrain Division

(starting October 1, 2018)

Werner Volz (59) has headed Finance and Controlling in the Chassis & Safety division since 2008. He is an experienced financial expert who has held managerial positions in various business areas for more than 27 years. He has headed Finance and Controlling in Continental's Chassis & Safety division since 2008. He played a major part in the permanent restructuring of these areas during the financial crisis in 2008/2009 as well as in the lasting successful growth management of the business with advanced driver assistance systems.

After studying business administration at the University of Cooperative Education in Heidenheim, Werner Volz began his career at Carl Schäfer KG, Ulm. From 1987 to 1996, he worked at AEG in the fields of communications technology as well as systems and automation technology. His positions included CFO of AEG Automation Systems Corporation in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, U.S.A., and commercial director of AEG Anlagen- und Automatisierungstechnik GmbH in Frankfurt, Germany. In 1997, Volz joined Siemens VDO, where he assumed various management positions in commercial areas before the takeover by Continental in 2007, the last position being commercial director of the Safety and Chassis & Motor Drives division. He has headed Finance and Controlling in the Chassis & Safety division since 2008.
